A GIRL'S BRAVE FIGHT.

How an Arkansas Maiden Baffled a Gang of Outlaws.
New Orleans Times-Democrat.

An adventure of Hattie Benton, a girl of sixteen, with a gang of outlaws on the Arkansas River proves her bravery to be equal to that of any man living. Soon after the war, while everything was yet in confusion in the South, and especially in the Southwest, Benton moved from Missouri to Arkansas, and settled upon the Arkansas River at a point midway between Pine Bluffs and Arkansas Post.

The country was then full of outlaws of all sorts and robbery, assassination and murder were rife in the lonely sections. Benton lived on the bank of the river and furnished wood to the steamboats. Hattie was his only child, and had been accustomed to the wild life of the West since babyhood. The mother was an invalid, who could scarcely leave the house or wait upon herself. The father was a man of fiery temper, and people soon learned that to attempt any love-making with the girl would be pretty certain to end in somebody's death. The three or four gallants who came sighing about were made to walk the plank, and in time it came to be known along the river that old man Benton looked upon his daughter as too good a match for any one in those parts. Then it was that an outlaw named Jack Cummerford sent the old man a message that he was coming to make Hattie his wife. The fellow was proprietor of a floating whisky shanty, and had two or three hard cases constantly with him. While there was no question that this crew were guilty of stealing and robbing and worse, the victims hesitated to complain and the law to arrest.

Cummerford heard of the girl long enough before he saw her, and the first Benton heard of the outlaw was by way of a message in which Cummerford told him that he would be on hand in about ten days to look the girl over, and if she suited him he would take her away. The father boiled over at the impudence of the message, and he arranged to kill the outlaw on sight. Had it been known just how he would come, Cummerford would have been welcomed with a bullet; but the messenger did not state that part of it, and after being on his guard several days the father began to relax his vigilance and to believe the message to be nothing more than an idle boast. One morning he went down to his woodpile to find a shanty-boat moored at the bank and a rough-looking fellow just coming ashore. Jack Cummerford and his gang had arrived, and the villain intended to make his word good. Benton was not armed; the outlaw had a rifle in his hand. Suspecting some evil the pioneer started to retreat, but was shot in the back before he had gone thirty feet, and he was dead almost as soon as the outlaw reached him. The three then proceeded to the house together. The mother and daughter were preparing breakfast, and were ordered to make provision for their visitors. They had heard the rifle-shot, but before they could voice their suspicions of what had happened, the leader of the gang brutally said: "Come now; hurry up. I've come to take the gal away, and as I thought the old man might object, I laid him out on the start. No sniveling now, but get breakfast ready, and then prepare to go with me."

The mother was so overcome that she dropped into a chair and began moaning and weeping. It was a terrible shock to the girl, but she realized from the first moment that if she was to be saved from the fate planned for her she must save herself. She therefore went ahead with the preparations for the meal, and about the time the men were told to sit down to the table the mother hobbled out and sat down beside the dead body of her husband, so dazed and terrified that she could not shed a tear. After the first shock the girl began to plan against the gang, and every move made by the men was narrowly watched. As the place was isolated they had no fear of being disturbed and took matters very leisurely. They talked of the shooting of Benton as coolly as if they had fired only upon a dog, and as they drew up to the table Cummerford observed:

"Ought to have hit him about two inches lower, but it wasn't so bad for a snap-shot. Kinder sorry for the old woman, but she'll feel better after we fling the body into the river. Say, gal, how d'y'e like me, any way? You order to be proud of such a man as Jack Cummerford?"

"Come Jack, be a bit easy on her until we get aloft," remarked one of the others.

"Oh sartin," chuckled the outlaw. "She's kinder 'fraid of me now, but she'll soon be proud of her husband. Rather poity gal, Hattie is. Sorry I didn't come last week, but my motto is to attend to business first. Say, gal, don't be afraid to laugh if you feel like it."

Cummerford had brought his rifle or carbine to the house, while the others had left their firearms aboard the boat. The carbine leaned against the wall in the rear of the men. Just as they got fairly to eating the girl examined it sufficiently to note that the chamber contained four or five bullets. No sooner was she certain of this than she snatched it up and ran out of doors, and as she ran for her mother, who was in the direct line of the boat, she called to her to leave the body and hasten aboard the craft. Dashed as she was, the mother did not hesitate a second about complying, and she was aboard before any of the outlaws came out. When they did appear it was to find the girl with the carbine at an aim, covering the mother's retreat, and walking slowly backward herself. The ruffians were all upset for the moment. Then Cummerford sprang into the cabin after the dead man's rifle, and when he reappeared he brought it to his face and commanded the girl, who was by that time on board the shanty-boat and trying to cast off the line, to come ashore. She paid not the least attention, and he coolly fired at her head. The bullet drew blood from the edge of her right ear, and in retaliation she picked up the carbine and fired an offhand shot which killed the man that stood on the right of Cummerford. The recoil of the heavy piece knocked her down, but before they could rush upon her the mother seized an axe and cut the line, and the boat floated away in the current.

Cummerford ran back into the cabin for ammunition, but before he found it the boat was half a mile below the house, and when he opened fire the women sheltered themselves in the cabin. As fast as he could load and fire he fired upon the boat, hoping a stray shot might wound or kill. The girl made no reply until the current carried the boat into a treetop on the opposite side of the stream. Then, when the outlaws began to swish or float off to it, she opened fire with three or four loaded revolvers hanging in the cabin, and did such good shooting as to force them to abandon the attempt.

Had it been coming on dark the two men would doubtless have found means to recover the boat and recapture the woman, but the craft had not been detained more than an hour in the tree-top when a Government survey party came along and were soon in possession of all the particulars. The women were taken off, the boat was stripped of its plunder, and then the structure was given over to the flames.

During this time two men were landed to hunt for the wretches, but like the cowards they were they left the locality with all possible speed, and Cummerford was not heard of again until killed in a fight at Arkansas Post.

Anecdotes of Sam Houston.
While sitting socially with some friends in his room at Willard's, General Sam Houston was intruded upon one night by a stalwart army officer, who bolted in unceremoniously, stalked across the room in full regimentals, and demanded of Houston an apology for insult.

"You labor under some mistake, sir; I am not aware of ever having had the honor of meeting you, or of ever seeing you, before this moment," said the General, in his quiet courtly manner.

The intruder angrily rejoined: "You brushed your elbow against mine to-day on Pennsylvania Avenue, and never stopped to beg pardon. I felt grossly insulted and told my friends that I should demand an apology, though I did not expect to get it. Nothing is left for me but to seek the satisfaction due to a gentleman."

Houston now rose from his chair, stood with that imperial dignity which he could assume at will, and said, in a tone clear and satirical, as he pointed the door to the visitor, "Commend me to the man who demands an apology when he don't expect to get it!"

Better Than Vacation.
This is pre-eminently the vacation month, when thousands seek rest and recreation. But to those who suffer the depressing effect of summer debility, the disagreeable symptoms of scrofula, the tortures of biliousness, dyspepsia, or sick headache, there is more pain than pleasure in leaving home. To such we say give Hood's Sarsaparilla a trial. It will purify your blood, tone up and strengthen your body, expel every trace of scrofula, correct biliousness, and positively cure dyspepsia or sick headache. Take it before you go, and you will enjoy your vacation a thousand fold.

Being a Reporter.

The boy who would be a successful journalist must enter the profession with no vain ambition to hurry up and get his name in print, or to be called an "editor." He must make up his mind to work hard and conscientiously; and, after a number of years, take the position in the profession to which he seems best adapted, resting content therewith. If he comes to his work with a collegiate graduation it will be well, but is by no means necessary.

Journalism, it must be borne in mind, is distinct from authorship, pure and simple. The journalist deals with the questions of the day; his knowledge must be on the tip of his tongue, or, rather, at the point of his pen—ready for use at any moment. The author, on the other hand, can sit at home, write leisurely, revise frequently and consult books of reference to verify his statements.

Some college bred reporters are occasionally both pained and surprised at their first newspaper experiences. Such a young man may look in the morning paper for his first report, on which, you may be sure, he has taken the greatest possible pains. He has given an elaborate description of the hall, the appearance of the audience and of the lecturer he has been sent to report.

Yet he cannot find his account although he is sure he wrote a column. "May be it's crowded out," says a brother reporter, and then adds: "Why, no, here it is! It is cut down and they have put a new 'head' on it."

Yes, there it is, away down in the corner of the third page, next to the market reports!

It makes a column, all but nintenths.

Our college-bred young friend may be very angry at such shabby treatment; but if he is a sensible fellow he soon gets used to it. In fact, he is compelled to get used to it.—St. Nicholas.

An Original Version.
There lived near Alexandria, in Virginia, an old colored man and woman, whom their acquaintances called Daddy and Mammy Williams. He had educational advantages and could read in a fashion peculiarly his own; but his wife, though lacking as regards erudition, possessed great force of character, which she often displayed in a manner very irritating to her husband. When she became particularly fractious, Daddy would take the Bible and open to that chapter in Revelation beginning: "And there appeared a great wonder in heaven, a woman clothed with the sun and the moon under her feet," etc.

With impressive solemnity he would read as follows: "An' dere 'peared a great wonder in heaven, a woman!" Slowly closing the book, he would gaze sternly at his now subdued wife, for the passage never failed to produce the desired effect.—Harper's Magazine.

The vote of General Houston in the United States Senate on the repeal of the Missouri Compromise rendered him temporarily unpopular in Texas. In the political campaign following he drew large crowds as usual whenever he spoke on the hustings, but was sometimes interrupted. On one occasion a local politician, Colonel — (call him Thompson), gave the old veteran the lie direct in the middle of a speech. The General paused, all eyes were upon him, and every one was curious to hear how the hero of San Jacinto would resent the wanton insult. He said, promptly and very deliberately: "Colonel Thompson calls me a liar. [Profound silence.] I cannot truthfully say that in my long life I have never told a falsehood; but, fellow-citizens, I will now tell the biggest lie I ever told in all my life—Colonel Thompson is a gentleman!"—Harper's Magazine.

Indispensable to the Toilet.

A Medicine Squaw.

When an Indian is wounded by an arrow his first act is to seize it, and with a quick pull, tear it out of the wound, as the longer the arrow remains therein the more difficult and painful is the operation of extraction. The wounded white man, Abbot, neglected this precaution and when he tried to pull it out afterwards, the arrow broke, leaving the head in the wound. Some days after the fight, Abbot being in great pain, he and his friends were visited by a party of Con-Cows, who told them that the great Medicine Squaw of the tribe was coming and that she would pull the arrow out of his breast without causing him any pain.

In a few moments she appeared, arrayed in all the paraphernalia of her high position among the Con-Cows and escorted by a large retinue of friends and satellites. Advancing with slow steps and dignified countenance, she halted opposite Abbot, and with an imperious gesture ordered him to rise, open the bosom of his shirt and expose the wound—all of which he did, affected and impressed, in spite of himself, by her earnestness and dignity.

Looking with a deep and searching glance at the wound she began in a slow recitative an incantation addressed to some invisible being, accompanied by an equally slow chant on the part of her companions. When this had continued for some time, and the spirit was apparently conciliated by these preliminary steps, she slowly extended her arm toward the wound, as if grasping an invisible arrow, and as quickly withdrew her arm, as if her effort to pull the arrow out of the wound had been ineffectual. The chant grew stronger, and slowly and with a firmer pressure, the arm was again extended and withdrawn—this time with a stronger effort as if the arrow was deeply imbedded in the flesh. Again and again was the act repeated, her face becoming sterner and grander in her unflinching purpose to overcome all resistance.

As her efforts increased, so did the chant of her companions, gradually swelling into a deafening din; until with brows knit and her resolute will shining out of her eyes, she gave a mighty pull—and the chant was one of triumph and exultation and the bystanders pressing around her beheld, bloody and with shreds of torn flesh still adhering to it, the arrow head in her open hand.

Glaucing with ineffable superiority over the whites, she slightly tossed her head, as if such an operation was by no means a wonderful one for her to perform; and turning about she retraced her way back, amid the applause of her awe-struck companions.

To say that the whites were astonished would hardly express their feelings; but the most astonished of all was Abbot, who remained standing, looking open-mouthed at her retreating form—for he still felt the arrow head in his breast, where it remained at last advice, despite the efforts of some of the best physicians in San Francisco, who have at last told him that any attempt to cut it out, at this late day, would endanger his health.—A. G. Tassin in August "Overland."

An End To Bone Scraping.
Edward Shepard, of Harrisburg, Ill., says: "Having received much benefit from Electric Bitters, I feel it my duty to let suffering humanity know it. Have had a running sore on my leg for eight years, my doctors told me I would have to have the bone scraped or leg amputated. I used, instead, three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes Bucklen's Arnica Salve, and my leg is now sound and well." Electric Bitters are sold at fifty cent a bottle, and Bucklen's Arnica Salve at 25c. per box by Ed. Wegner.

President Cleveland regrets that he was unable to acquire a collegiate education. No less than eight of his predecessors, including Washington and Lincoln, the greatest of them all, were not college graduates. The others were Jackson, Van Buren, Taylor, Fillmore, Johnson and Grant.—Portland Advertiser.

Gord Results in Every Case.
D. A. Bradford, wholesale paper dealer of Chattanooga, Tenn., writes that he was seriously afflicted with a severe cold that settled on his lungs; had tried many remedies without benefit. Being induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, did so and was entirely cured by the use of a few bottles, since which time he has used it in his family for all coughs and colds with best results. This is the experience of thousands whose lives have been saved by this Wonderful Discovery. Trial bottles free at Wegner's Drug Store.

The many remarkable cures Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes are sufficient proof that it does possess peculiar curative powers.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

SONOMA, AUGUST 13, 1887.

Communications upon matters of local or general interest are solicited. Communications should be addressed to the Editor, and will not be inserted unless paid for as an advertisement.

The author's real name must accompany all communications, not necessarily for publication, but as a guarantee of good faith. This rule will not be deviated from.

A MISINFORMED EDITOR.

The editor of the Santa Rosa Day Book is evidently easily misled. Hear him:

Why the Sonoma Index-Tribune should be so much interested in the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Railroad Company, as we are informed it has done (we have not seen the paper), or why it sets up a clamor against the construction of the projected road, that in its construction and operation will prove so great a benefit to the entire county, the town of Sonoma not excepted, is more than we can tell. Unless—unless it may be there is a Donahue cat in the meat tub. Don't be foolish longer. Thousands upon thousands of people are coming to California, in the near future, many of them will come over the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Railroad, and the beautiful, fruitful valley of Sonoma will receive its share of the influx. Don't be foolish longer. The road will be built, and you will be made happy by the result to follow.

The writer of the foregoing ought to have better informed himself as to the opinions of the Sonoma Index-Tribune on the railroad question in Sonoma county before expressing himself as above. This paper has never opposed any of the railroad projects which have bobbed up to the surface in this county in the past eighteen months except that engineered by the adventurer Orr. We plead guilty to the charge of denouncing that scheme and its promoter, while the Press of Santa Rosa were high in their praise of both. Subsequent developments proved that the INDEX-TRIBUNE was right in the course it pursued, notwithstanding there was a perfect howl raised in Santa Rosa because we had the temerity to denounce Orr and his man "Friday," contractor (?) Waltz. In regard to the Santa Rosa and Carquinez road, we would inform the editor of the Day Book that this paper has never berated Mr. La Motte. We simply stated in a recent issue that "by his denouncing and overbearing manner he had antagonized a number of farmers in Sonoma Valley, and in consequence it would be almost impossible for him to secure right of way without commencing condemnation proceedings." We will also let our misinformed contemporary know that the INDEX-TRIBUNE has never set up a clamor against the construction of the Santa Rosa and Carquinez road. On the contrary, the files of this paper show that since the agitation of the railroad question commenced in this county we have endeavored in a conscientious manner to do the fair thing by both companies. We, in connection with the people of Sonoma Valley, don't care a snap of our fingers which of the rival roads is built so long as we get proper railroad facilities. The INDEX-TRIBUNE toadies to no man or corporation and the contemptible insinuation of the Santa Rosa paper that we are being influenced by the Donahue people is known to be groundless by every regular reader of the INDEX-TRIBUNE by the course pursued by this paper. It is true that we advocate the extension of the Donahue line from Pacheco to some point in Sonoma Valley, and the reason of our advocacy can be made very plain to the editor of the Day Book if he will take the trouble to visit this section and interview our people on the proposition. He will discover that nine-tenths of the people of Sonoma Valley endorse the views expressed by the INDEX-TRIBUNE. That they favor a connection with Pacheco for the reason that it will make our valley a suburb of the metropolis of the Pacific, by shortening the time between the two places to one hour and a half. But while favoring the Donahue project we have also advocated a connection with the trunk lines of the State, and we will state right here if the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Company intend building the road that has been surveyed out by them, we are also in favor of that project. In other words the INDEX-TRIBUNE favors the company that will give us better railroad facilities, be it the Donahue company or the Santa Rosa and Carquinez road, the Day Book to the contrary notwithstanding.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From Our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, August 1, 1887.

Fort Myer near Washington, an abandoned station of the Signal Corps, is to be used as a U. S. Cavalry post. Two troops of the 4th and 5th Cavalry have arrived from Arizona, and are settling in the old barracks left vacant by the Signal Corps. An appropriation of $25,000, will allow new staves and new barracks to be built and leave a sufficient sum to repair the old buildings. The post is to be commanded by Maj. Carpenter of the 5th Cavalry with Capt. Lawton and Capt. Anderson of the 4th and 5th commanding the two companies. Fort Myer is named for the first chief of the Signal Corps, the late Gen. Albert Myer, and is beautifully situated on the Virginia hills close to Arlington. It commands a fine view of the Potomac River and the city of Washington. With these natural advantages the fort will undoubtedly become what Gen. Sheridan desires to make it, the show cavalry post of the army as well as a school for cavalry drill.

When the repairs on the aqueduct bridge, now in progress, are completed, the bridge will be opened free to the public. Arlington and Fort Myer will then be to people deriving what Fort Adams is to the people of Newport, and if the officers at Fort Myer can manage to have a band and give afternoon concerts the resemblance will be all the more striking and pleasant. During the absence of the President and Mrs. Cleveland at Oakview, the vestibule of the White House is being frescoed and renovated. The portrait of Thomas Jefferson, which for many years adorned the space over the fireplace in the vestibule, has been removed to the East Room and placed in the panel to the right of the portrait of Martin Washington. The frescoes in the vestibule are after designs left by Brumidi, the Italian artist, who designed and executed the greater portion of the frescoes on the walls of the Capitol. Strangers visiting the Capitol a few years ago would be astonished to see on the floor of the rotunda an old man enter a sort of basket chair and be slowly hoisted to the top of the dome. This was Brumidi, who, too old to mount to the dome by the stairway, was lately lifted up, and there in his lofty chair would continue his work of painting the circle of the dome with scenes from American history beginning with the landing of Columbus and ending with pictures representing some of the latest developments in science and invention. Brumidi did not live to complete his work on the dome, but anticipating his death, he made designs in charcoal, to be used in finishing the work begun by him. These designs have been faithfully followed, and the arch around the dome represents partly his work and wholly his conception.

Appalled at the apparent prospect of having to entertain a delegation from every State in the Union, with an invitation to invite him within its borders in the pocket of the chairman the President has sent out a mild but earnest protest against being swamped down upon during this melting weather, assuring the public that their invitations to have him visit them are just as much appreciated when clothed in writing, and will be just as likely accepted. In the mean while he prays to be left in peace with Mrs. Cleveland at his country home until October, when he starts out on his proposed tour. If the President does not actually ask to be left in peace, his words tacitly imply that he desires it.

At the Navy Department, Secretary Whitney is to be found busy with his accumulated mail matters. Mr. Whitney is known as the "dude" member of the Cabinet, but to see him at work in his shirt sleeves these hot days leads one to believe that he is a man very much maligned. The Signal office reports this July as the hottest month recorded since the organization of the weather bureau in 1871. The citizens of Washington do not need the records of the signal office to tell them that the fact is self evident. Then, we have all gotten warm over something else besides the weather, and that is, the increase of the water tax. The water works of the District were built by the U. S. Government, but they seem to be managed or rather mismanaged by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. The affairs of the water tax office are in such a labyrinth, that no one can make head nor tail of them. The fact remains that water takers have been taxed and re-taxed and assessed and re-assessed, until their patience is exhausted, and now come the Commissioners, the water department being in arrears, and "make a law" to increase the rates to make good the deficiency. "The law is mandatory and admits of no discretion," say these Great Moguls. The laws of the Medes and Persians were not more fixed than that.

Chief Justice Grey, who is the only bachelor on the Supreme Bench, is building himself a handsome house on the corner of 16th and I streets. The house is to be a model one, having all the rooms necessary to make a bachelor comfortable, on one floor. The second floor is devoted to extra bedrooms, and with the view probably to the possible contingency of the bachelor Justice becoming a Benedict.

BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

They Discuss the County Liquor License.

The Supervisors, pursuant to adjournment, met at the Court House, Santa Rosa at 10 a. m., Thursday, to discuss the liquor license question. Present, Supervisors O'Hara, Allen, Coulter, Davis and Connolly. Petitions were presented both for and against removing the county license from the liquor trade in the county. One asked that the license be raised to $150 per quarter, while one presented by the liquor men requested that the quarterly county license in incorporated towns be abolished altogether. The petition presented by the temperance people was worded as follows:

"We, your petitioners do most respectfully request that you increase the quarterly license ordinance to $150 in this county as to the sale of spirituous liquors, for the reason that on account of the sale and use of spirituous liquors our taxes are increased one-fourth, as it is a prolific source of crime, insanity, ignorance, poverty, filling our penitentiaries, insane asylums and almshouses to overflowing; therefore, we think the parties engaged in the traffic and use of the same should bear the burden of the increased taxation resulting therefrom."

This petition contained 1830 names and occupied over an hour in reading. After a short address by Dr. T. M. Leavenworth, Supervisor Connolly took the floor. He said: "The liquor evil is a great question and has called for the brightest ideas from the most brilliant minds in all ages. Its remedies have been sought by every people in various ways. Yet all have proved ineffectual, and it still exists. Our efforts to mitigate the evil short of the one aimed at as fountain head. Other means have proven sadly inadequate. I know these people are actuated by honest motives in petitioning this Board for the increase in the license ordinance, but I am equally as honest in my convictions, although they differ somewhat from theirs. We have tried local option, high license, prohibition; none of these have proved efficacious, but have in many instances proved an aggravation of the evil I tell you that you must go to the fountain head in searching for the cure of this crying evil. Remedies are useless. As long as the Government of the United States licenses the manufacture of liquor, so long will it be used and just so long will it be sold. If it is such an evil, as none will dispute that it is, then why license the manufacture of it at all? Sweep the traffic from the face of the country, and I'll guarantee that the saloon men will join hands with you in the grand achievement. But instead of that you heap upon the heads of those engaged in the sale of liquor alimony, censure and reproach, instead of trying to elevate them and this business to a higher plane of respectability than that upon which it now rests, through your own endeavors to remedy an evil which does not lie in its emissaries. The habit of drink will have its course as long as it is manufactured, and in trying to enact laws which are intended to mitigate to the partial eradication of the vice by the preclusion of the dens, you make it necessary for the more respectable saloons to go forth greater efforts and offer superior inducements in order to sell their wares. The places where liquor is sold are decreased in number, perhaps, but the strength of the evil is augmented." In accordance with his views on the subject as above set forth, he moved that the petition be indefinitely postponed.

Mr. Coulter followed saying: "At the time that the petition for the repeal of the license ordinance was received by the Board, he had thought it a matter of sufficient importance to permit of the sentiments of the people being obtained, and his consideration had been postponed for that purpose. The matter was published in the papers and fairly presented to the people for their consideration. We now have that sentiment condensed, as it were, within the little rolls lying upon the Clerk's desk. Now what shall the Supervisor of the fourth district say when he returns to his constituents and tells them that their petition had been postponed, their sentiments disregarded, etc. What answer can the Supervisor on my part make to his people? He asked to be allowed time in which to offer a substitute to Mr. Connolly's motion. The substitute to the license ordinance which, among other changes, fixed the quarterly license at $150 in accordance with the petition. The reading of the amendment occupied the Clerk some minutes, after which Mr. Coulter spoke as follows:

"If the disposition of the Board of the county upon this subject has not been sufficiently learned, I will interpose no objection to its being postponed to some future date to allow further opportunity to be made that the people in all districts have not had the opportunity of expressing themselves."

Mr. Davis said that he could answer for the people of his district very easily. His constituents had signed a petition asking him to do a certain thing and again signed a petition asking him not to do it. His mind was made up he said, and no speech could influence his determination in the least. He thought he would have no trouble whatever in answering his constituents. He said Mr. O'Hara asked what Mr. Coulter would do with the people in his (O'Hara's) district. They had neither petition nor remonstrated. Mr. Coulter's remarks are as follows: "Perhaps the people in the district from whence the Chairman comes have never had their attention called to the burden under which they are suffering from this business. Why sir, the petitioners for the increase of the license ordinance are modest when they say that one-quarter of the expenses of the county government entailed upon the people results from the pursuit of this traffic. I believe that three-quarters of the pauperism, three-quarters of the crime, three-quarters of the insanity, three-quarters of the degradation, is the legitimate offspring of this business as the child is the off spring of its father. It is a fixed law of mankind that the father shall be held responsible for the maintenance of his offspring and this business is not paying for the support of the legitimate offspring. It pays into the treasury of the county about $30,000 a year. Why sir, $30,000 will not liquidate the bill growing directly out of the presentation of this pursuit. Take into consideration that there are over 800 female signers to that petition, and within the confines of this city eight hundred women burdened with the weight of this oppression; its threatening aspect toward the means for furnishing their children with food and raiment, with education. Oppressed so heavily with this burden that they ask to be relieved from it. Mr. Allen was the next speaker. He said that Mr. Coulter had so thoroughly covered the ground that there was nothing left for him to say. In speaking of the large number of ladies who had signed the petition he said: "When a petition comes here with over 400 names of ladies upon it, I should consider it better than one signed by 10,000 men. He also referred feelingly to the topics of crime and poverty touched upon by Mr. Coulter, and seconded that gentleman's amendment. There were some further remarks made after which the amendment by Mr. Coulter was put to vote and resulted as follows:

Ayes, Allen, Coulter; noes, Connolly, Davis, O'Hara. Mr. Coulter then moved an amendment to Mr. Connolly's motion to postpone the further consideration of the matter until September 25th. The same vote was recorded and the amendment lost. The vote was then taken on the original motion with the following result: Ayes, Connolly, Davis, O'Hara; noes, Allen, Coulter.

After transacting some further business the Board adjourned until Monday, September 25th.

Glen Ellen Notes.

Some of the planks on the county bridge at this place, being completely worn out, have been replaced by new ones.

Charley Weise killed two fine deer last Saturday with his little Winchester.

Nicols, the painter, has begun painting and papering the bakery building adjoining the Glen Ellen Hotel.

John Small received a cargo of watermelons last Saturday. They were raised in Lodi, are thin-rind and of fine flavor.

John T. Peters of the Mervyn Hotel has been under the weather for the past week but is now convalescing.

Our boys may get a little sleep now, something that was impossible while the camp dances were in progress. OLD TIMER.

COUNTY CULLINGS.

(Santa Rosa Democrat.)

De Turk is preparing to ship one hundred barrels of grape brandy to New York city.

J. W. Armstrong, while coupling cars at Fulton, Thursday afternoon, sustained injuries to his left hand which necessitated the amputation of the first and second fingers.

The trial of J. E. Cache, the bogus "Examiner" correspondent, on charge of forgery, took place before Judge Pressley and a jury Friday. The jury was out some time before arriving at the verdict which was guilty, with an earnest recommendation to mercy. The defendant was sentenced on Tuesday to one year in the State Prison at Folsom.

[Republican.]

Judge Pressley granted the motion of the counsel for J. Bryant, charged with attempted rape, setting aside the information and discharging the defendant. Bryant was immediately re-arrested and will not escape on the error which was made in the former commitment.

Mr. B. Davis, residing on Third street, discovered a man and woman on his front porch. They walked very silently and judging from the manner in which they slipped along, their shoes were covered with something to prevent making a noise. Trying the parlor door and failing to open it, they went away. He did not know whether they were burglars or some one who had come to the wrong house. Either way they were in a strange position.

PHYSICIANS HAVE FOUND OUT

That a contaminating and foreign element in the blood, developed by indigestion, is the cause of rheumatism. This settles upon the sensitive sub-cutaneous covering of the muscles and ligaments of the joints, causing constant and shifting pain, and aggregating as a calcareous, chalky deposit which produces stiffness and distortion of the joints. No fact which experience has demonstrated in regard to Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has stronger evidence to support than this, namely, that this medicine of comprehensive uses checks the formidable and atrocious disease, nor is it less positively established that it is preferable to the poisons often used to arrest it, since the medicine contains only salutary ingredients. It is also a signal remedy for malarial fevers, constipation, dyspepsia, kidney and bladder ailments, debility and other disorders. See that you get the genuine.

The traveling public praise the Occidental Hotel, R. D. Moore proprietor.

NEW TO-DAY.

The importance of purifying the blood cannot be overestimated, for without pure blood you cannot enjoy good health. At this season nearly every one needs a good medicine to purify, vitalize, and enrich the blood, and Hood's Sarsaparilla is worthy your confidence. It is peculiar in that it strengthens and builds up the system, creates an appetite, and tones the digestion, while it eradicates disease. Give it a trial. Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sixteen applications were received for membership into the Young Men's Institute on Wednesday of last week. This organization, of which Rev. In the trespass case of Johnson Burnham, action to restrain defendant from using a road over a portion of the Buena Vista ranch, which came up for trial in the Superior Court at Santa Rosa last week, the defendant suffered default, and a perpetual injunction was granted against his using the road. The management of the Buena Vista, having been annoyed of late years by trespassers, is determined to put an end to the unauthorized trespassing and the above lawsuit.

SONOMA. A Chinese employ of Mr. E. T. Sheppard of Macrone Vineyard is constructing a large stone wine cellar adjoining his old one. The new building will be two stories and a half in height and in size 70x40 feet. The walls are two feet in thickness and when the cellar is completed it will be one of the most substantial structures of the kind in the State. The stone used in its construction is quarried on the place and is pronounced by stone-masons to be the finest and cheapest building stone in the world. The contractor for the edifice is A. Cassani.

This remarkable freak of nature evidently startled the old hen, for the chick was dispatched a few hours after being hatched and thrown out of the nest. Mrs. Boyes has preserved the monstrosity in a glass jar and it has been added to the many interesting curiosities which adorn her home.

Work Commenced. [S. F. Call, August 12.] The Southern Pacific have commenced work on the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Railroad somewhat earlier than was anticipated. The original intention was to do nothing until the first section of the Capay Valley line was completed, but the surveys having been finished it was deemed advisable to commence the construction of the road immediately. Grading will be commenced from the Napa end of the line, and no time will be lost in pushing the work through to Santa Rosa. Together with the announcement of the Southern Pacific's action comes the news that Colonel Donahue has set men to work at Glen Ellen on the line surveyed from there to Santa Rosa. Graders were set to work yesterday morning, but how far the construction of this road will be pushed is a question not now determined.

One of the eyes was directly on top of the chick's head, while the others were in natural position. This remarkable freak of nature evidently startled the old hen, for the chick was dispatched a few hours after being hatched and thrown out of the nest. Mrs. Boyes has preserved the monstrosity in a glass jar and it has been added to the many interesting curiosities which adorn her home.

New Wine Cellar. Mr. E. T. Sheppard of Macrone Vineyard is constructing a large stone wine cellar adjoining his old one. The new building will be two stories and a half in height and in size 70x40 feet. The walls are two feet in thickness and when the cellar is completed it will be one of the most substantial structures of the kind in the State. The stone used in its construction is quarried on the place and is pronounced by stone-masons to be the finest and cheapest building stone in the world. The contractor for the edifice is A. Cassani.

Work Commenced. [S. F. Call, August 12.] The Southern Pacific have commenced work on the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Railroad somewhat earlier than was anticipated. The original intention was to do nothing until the first section of the Capay Valley line was completed, but the surveys having been finished it was deemed advisable to commence the construction of the road immediately. Grading will be commenced from the Napa end of the line, and no time will be lost in pushing the work through to Santa Rosa. Together with the announcement of the Southern Pacific's action comes the news that Colonel Donahue has set men to work at Glen Ellen on the line surveyed from there to Santa Rosa. Graders were set to work yesterday morning, but how far the construction of this road will be pushed is a question not now determined.

A Ball of By-Gone Days.

The printing press on which was printed the "Sonoma Bulletin," established by A. J. Cox in this place in 1850, is now in the possession of Robt. A. Poppe of this city, who will place it on exhibition at the Mechanics Fair as a part of the Sonoma Valley Exhibit. The press is an abbreviated specimen of a Washington hand-press, the plates being 16x12 inches in size. The "Sonoma Bulletin" was printed on this press at intervals up to 1855 when the editor, in a characteristic notice in the "Petaluma Courier" of September 15, 1855, announced its demise as follows: "Hon. Q. Smiles" wishes to return his thanks to the editorial fraternity for the kind notice of his debut, and to the public generally (the rest of mankind included) for their liberal patronage and to announce that the "Blunderbuss has dried up." One of the frequent contributors to the "Sonoma Bulletin" was Lieut. Geo. H. Derby, U. S. A., better known to the literary world as the "nom de plume" of "John Phoenix" and "Squibb." The old press has lain unused in an old adobe building ever since the paper ceased to exist until resurrected by Mr. Poppe a few weeks ago. It is still in a good state of preservation.

Painful Accident.

Alf. McLaughlin, a young man well and favorably known to every resident of Sonoma Valley, met with quite a painful accident in the Sonoma Public School yard last Tuesday at the noon recess. While running a foot race he was tripped up by another scholar and falling heavily to the ground struck upon the side of his head, badly spraining the cords of his neck. He was rendered helpless by the injury and had to be picked up and assisted to a carriage. His injuries were so painful it was found impossible to drive him to his home, and he was taken to the residence of Mrs. Smith, his aunt. A physician was sent for and at present writing he is improving, with the chances are that he will be up and around in a few days.

New Machinery.

Mr. Julius Fochetti is perfecting arrangements to erect a Tanne emery grinder in his blacksmith shop for the purpose of grinding chilled plow shares or anything else that requires an emery wheel to do the work. The machine will be operated by an upright 44-horse power engine. It is the intention of Mr. Fochetti to have the grinder in operation about the middle of October so as to be ready for the Fall plowing season. We are pleased to note this as there is no machine of this kind in Sonoma, and in consequence the farmer either throws his chilled plow shares away as soon as they become too dull for use or else sends them to San Francisco to be ground. Chilled shares can be sharpened at least three times and made to do the service of new shares every time they are ground and in consequence much money will be saved to the farmer when Mr. Fochetti gets his new machinery in running order.

Work Commenced.

The Southern Pacific have commenced work on the Santa Rosa and Carquinez Railroad somewhat earlier than was anticipated. The original intention was to do nothing until the first section of the Capay Valley line was completed, but the surveys having been finished it was deemed advisable to commence the construction of the road immediately. Grading will be commenced from the Napa end of the line, and no time will be lost in pushing the work through to Santa Rosa. Together with the announcement of the Southern Pacific's action comes the news that Colonel Donahue has set men to work at Glen Ellen on the line surveyed from there to Santa Rosa. Graders were set to work yesterday morning, but how far the construction of this road will be pushed is a question not now determined.

Your Liver?

Is the Oriental salutation, knowing that good health cannot exist without a healthy Liver. When the Liver is torpid the Bowels are sluggish and constipated, the food fit gested, poisoning the blood; frequent headaches ensue; a feeling of lassitude, despondency and nervousness indicate how the whole system is deranged. Simmons Liver Regulator has been the means of restoring more people to health and happiness by giving them a healthy Liver than any agency known on earth. It acts with extraordinary power and efficacy.

NEVER BE DISAPPOINTED.

As a general family remedy for Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver, Constipation, etc., it hardly ever use anything else, and have never been disappointed in the effect produced; it seems to be almost a perfect cure for all diseases of the Stomach and Bowels.
